Dear Doctor:

I am in somewhat of a quandary as to just how I should make this inquiry. We have a production and research laboratory where we process and produce Germanium, Silicon, and Cadmium. Some rather baffling changes are being noted in our personnel.

I can find very little information in the published literature which applies to our conditions. I thought with your broad coverage you might have some information which would be of value to us. I have suggested you and the Kettering Laboratory to my Company as a source of information, advice and counsel.

Under what conditions could you give this matter further consideration?

Respectfully yours,

Burr L. Aton,
Industrial Hygienist
