Here's List Of Dog Ter

By [illegible]

Several months ago "Dog Talks" had an installment on Dog Terms with the promise to continue it in a later article. Here it is, although I am limiting the selection to basic dog terms, especially in anatomy. Such phrases as in the dog house, sick as a dog and going to the dogs, I believe my readers can fathom without explanation from Dog Talks. See your unabridged dictionary under dog for a long list of them.

Brush: not too frequently used, means tail, another term is flag.

Camel back: the backline instead of being level rises into an arch or convex line over the loin area or a little farther forward from it. Also a colloquial term to touch back or wagon-wheel back. It is the opposite of swayback, roll back and roach back.

Dewclaw: the first toe, which sits on the throat as on the bloodhound, opposite the term dew claw.

Elbow: a dog's elbow is about where the front of breast bone has its bottom line. Rising from it at an angle toward the head then changing V line at an angle toward the rear and first the upper arm, then the shoulder blade.

The dog's whole is not distinct the joint just above the front foot is the knee or pastern.

Litter—the total puppies at birth, litters can vary from one to an average of eight depending on breed, the act of giving birth is termed whelping. A puppy becomes a "man" graduates into adulthood officially at the age of 12 months.

Colors in dogs present a fascinating "dictionary." The basic division is between one solid or whole color for the entire body, and two or more colors on the dog, known as parti-colored (or if three colors tri-colored). Flecked refers to a dog of white color with scores of irregular spots, as though thrown in spattering fashion—usually blue, black or orange.

Do not be misled by the term "fawn." It covers a wide variety of brown from cream or biscuit to deep gold.

Harlequin is applied to Great Danes, corgis and a few other breeds including even dachshunds. Against a white background the patchlike areas over the entire body—these should be of varying sizes and shapes but with no edges regular, where a [illegible] definition spots of [illegible] on white black [illegible]
