and he called actors to be ready to report to work. Spokesmen for MGM and Paramount backed up Wald.

But nearly five hours of negotiations by the 14,000-member Screen Actors Guild and the Association of Motion Picture Producers ended last night without formal announcement of a strike settlement.

"We can all be very hopeful," negotiators said after the meeting.

Another negotiating session was scheduled for today with the explanation:

"There are some small details to be worked out."

Wald was so certain the strike which halted production of his multimillion-dollar "Let's Make Love" film would be announced settled that he kept his stars Marilyn Monroe and Yves Montand under orders to report for work today.

He only rescinded the orders at 9 p.m. EST when the negotiating session broke up without releasing formal word of the strike's end.

swept under the carpet."

The mayor stated his position to the school board and Supt. Harold Spears at a city hall meeting.

Christopher noted that "the professors said we are not giving sufficient attention to the three R's.

"Are we? Or are we not?"

Adolfo de Urioste, chairman of the board's curriculum committee, promptly answered: "We are not."

"The elementary schols are full of the three R's—there's no doubt about it," Spears declared.

Cost Problem Raised

Spears promised action on the suggested reforms, but raised the question of cost. He said that reducing the size of English classes alone would mean a million dollar increase in the budget for teachers, and more classrooms would be required.

De Urioste countered that some improvements could be made initially without additional cost.

Spears said he may have to request a school building bond issue within a couple of years. Christopher urged the board to take a long-range view of its building program, and "not wait until the last minute."

Spears, who is preparing his evaluation of the professors' report for the board, defended the school system here. This touched off a polite exchange with de Urioste, who with Skinner had long advocated a toughening up.

"I'll match our schools against any in the state," Spears said. "Don't let anybody lose confidence in the San Francisco schools."

De Urioste, without using the term "progressive education," suggested that what may be needed here was a change in education philosophy.

Three R's Needed

"Should we allow youngsters to do as they please, and select their own courses, or tell them what to learn?" de Urioste said.

Christopher, at the outset of the meeting, said he was a firm believer in the three R's.

soviet schooling. Russian students attended school six days a week for 230 days a year, compared to our 5 day week, 180-day school year, he said, adding:

"They teach mathematics in the first grade, physics in the sixth grade, chemsitry in the seventh grade, a foreign language in the fifth grade, and a second foreign language in their 10th year."

He had some pointed remarks to make about teachers' organizations, declaring:

"Occasionally when a schoolteacher is being reprimanded, teachers' organizations are too prone to protect the member, of their organization at all costs.

"The incompetent teacher reflects on the multitude of good teachers, and where there is conclusive evidence of incompetence, I believe teachers' associations should be the first to join with school department officials in removing that teacher."

Complain About The Boss But Only to Your Wife

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A State unemployment commissioner has ruled, in effect, that it's okay to complain about your boss, but try to confine the complaints to your wife.

Commissioner John Arcudi denied benefit payments to a salesman who was fired because he complained about his employer to his customers.

Arcudi said yesterday it was permissible to complain, but "these voiced complaints to customers cannot be of so grievous a nature as to destroy the good will the company has built up with that customer over the years."
