About Henry Company

A Brief History

Henry Company was founded in 1933 in Los Angeles, California, by Warner Henry, Sr., father of the current Chairman of Henry Company, Warner Henry.

From the beginning, Henry Company placed major emphasis on R&D. Numerous innovative breakthroughs in the Henry laboratories have resulted in demonstrably superior products. These accomplishments have earned the Henry product line the title, "#1 Choice of Professionals.®"

Henry began a period of intense expansion in the 1980s, that has carried through to the present. The most recent acquisition, and the largest, came in 1998, when Henry Company merged with Monsey Bakor -- the leading manufacturer of roof coatings and cements in the Eastern U.S. and Canada.

The primary focus of the Henry Company, as has been the tradition throughout the history of the company, is to provide customer satisfaction, through quality and service.
