company, isn't there something out about asbestos, isn't asbestos dangerous? Yes, it is dangerous under certain conditions, so he got these reports.

Where did he get them from? He didn't go back to a vault in Owens-Corning and open it up and say, uh-huh, here is a secret research.

He wrote to Washington, D.C., sent in his 20 cents and said send me a report and they did. Stuff that was known by everybody. Stuff known by the union. Yeah, we knew this. People who work with asbestos over a long period of time can get sick.

Do you know what these reports also said that they didn't tell you about which I am going to show you throughout the whole trial?

Through the 1930s on, even back in London, back in the United States, from the 1930s on it was known. It was known by labor. It was known by government and science.

They didn't say ban asbestos. They didn't say put warnings on asbestos. Here is what they said in the 1930s. Pardon my back.
