Industrial Health Conference Oct. 14

An industrial health conference will be held October 14 at the Baylor University School of Medicine in the Texas Medical Center. Frank Guthrie, chairman of the public health committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has announced. Approximately 500 industrial executives and health and hygiene authorities of the Gulf Coast region have been invited to attend the conference.

"The theme will be that the betterment of healthful working conditions is of equal benefit to management, labor, and the community," Mr. Guthrie said. "Industry has a responsibility for the health of the community as well as for its workers and must assume its rightful role in this field."

The conference is hoped to be the first of a series of annual conferences designed to encourage and assist industries in establishing industrial health programs and in the strengthening of programs already established, Mr. Guthrie said.

Co-sponsors of the conference are the industrial hygiene division of the American Medical Association, the Texas Department of Health, the Baylor School of Medicine and the Chamber of Commerce health committee. Other organizations in Houston are assisting in arrangements.

Mr. Guthrie, who is vice-president of the City National Bank, is in charge of organization. Other committee chairmen are program, James W. Hammond, industrial hygienist of Humble Oil and Refining Company; registration, Rex L. Tidwell, assistant executive director of Group Hospital Service, Inc.; promotion, R. J. Naul, safety manager of Hughes Tool Company; publications, Raymond A. Baarts, director of Community Chest and Council; and arrangements, R. F. Dowling, vice-president of Huey and Philip Hardware Company.

Among nationally known authorities on public and industrial health who have accepted invitations to appear before the conference are Dr. Lester Crailley of Pittsburgh, industrial hygiene engineer of the Aluminum Company of America; Dr. Ir-the eastern medical division of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company; Mark Hollis of Washington, assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service; Miss Margaret Sinnott of New York, chief of the nursing service of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; Jack Bloomfield, chief of the industrial hygiene division of the Public Health Service; and Dr. Robert Sutherland of Austin, director of the Hogg Foundation.

C.&S. Air Lines Offer $300 Prize

Cash prizes totalling $300 are offered by Chicago & Southern Air Lines for two winning names, one each for the southbound and northbound flights which C&S will ply the international aerial trail between Houston and New Orleans to Havana, Kingston, Jamaica, and Caracas, Venezuela.

C&S' service to the Caribbean and South America begins on July 31, from Houston, with direct flights from the main domestic route connecting with the unnamed South American flight in Havana. The Caracas-bound Dixieliner will leave Houston at 4:30 p. m., on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday of each week, stopping at Havana and Kingston.

Northbound flights depart Caracas each Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

No entry blanks are necessary to enter the contest. There is no limit on the number of entries each person may submit. Judges of the airline's Caracas Flight Naming Contest at C&S' general offices in Memphis, Tenn., will announce a winner on or before September 15, with the contest closing on September 1, it was announced.
