A physician is required to certify that an employee is physically and mentally capable of wearing a cannister type respirator.

There is nothing in the new inorganic lead standard that requires a pulmonary function study and a 14" X 17" AP chest X-Ray. However, these two specific tests are required in the Federal Asbestos Standard.

Mr. Bitting in Engineering has a copy of the medical part of each of the following standards:

1. Vinyl Chloride
2. Asbestos
3. Inorganic lead

If detailed information is needed, I would be glad to elaborate after you have a chance to look at those.
