Dear Doctor Kehoe:

I appreciate greatly your letter of February 27. My article did not state that tetra-ethyl lead poisoning was common, but it did state that poisoning with tetra-ethyl lead is serious. I see no reason for changing this statement.

On the other hand, if there exists any considerable amount of lead poisoning from painting, that fact ought to be emphasized more definitely. I will certainly take it up in another article.

I am, of course, familiar with your contributions, many of which have appeared in The Journal.

Certainly, I feel as you do relative to the hazards of all gasoline and petroleum products.

May I again state that I have not the slightest resentment relative to the discussion of what I wrote, and I welcome comments of the character of your note in order that I may present to the public as often as possible the most recent scientific views.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

S.
