Firm Opens New Store in Norwalk

J. J. Newberry Co., operator of 50 variety stores in Southern California, has opened a new outlet in Norwalk Center.

Built at a cost of $1,000,000, the store's 33,000 square feet of floor space make it the largest in California on one level, it was reported.

Isaac and Damon Shakarian were the builders and developers of the new store, which will be managed by Jim Glenn M. Langley.

The homes are offered to vets on VA terms at 4½% interest, with no down payments. Monthly payments are $72, including principal and interest. Kennedy terms feature down payments of 5%, plus costs and impounds. It was announced. The homes are priced from $13,950.

Ceiling Heaters

Features include refrigerated kitchenettes with ceiling heaters, ventilated sliding sash doors, knotty pine kitchen cabinets in natural finish, double sinks, waste disposals and 40 gallon water heaters.

Exterior details include tinted stucco, diamond light windows, front lawns and basic shrubs.

Streets, curbs, sidewalks and sewers are in and paid for, it was noted.

In downtown West Covina, 40-odd businesses in the Eastland Shopping Center, including the Ray Co., are only six minutes away. Within an hour's drive are famous playlands, beach resorts, mountain and beach resorts.

Orangewood may be reached via the San Bernardino Freeway to Citrus Ave. exit, south to Orangewood, and then left to the development.

Plans Prepared for $1,000,000 College Unit

The board of regents of the University of Nevada have approved final preliminary plans by Nestor A. Abramoff, Los Angeles architects, for a $1,000,000 classroom building for fine arts to be built on the university's campus at Reno.

The 61,000-square-foot L-shaped structure will be erected about a central drama section which will contain a 300-seat theater equipped with a full stage house and all facilities of the modern theater. Lighting wings will house the music department and the silent arts department. The theater's lobby will serve as main entrance to the building and as the first art gallery of the State. A wide flight of open stairs will lead from the gallery to a sculpture court located on the ground floor level.

Bank to Open New Branch

Union Bank will officially open its new Panorama City office at 14356 Parthenia Blvd., Panorama City, with brief ceremonies scheduled for 9:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Participants will include Harry J. Volk, president of Union Bank; George Thatcher, San Fernando Valley regional vice-president; Frank J. Dunbar, Union Bank manager in Panorama City, and community leaders including L. Stephen Brent, president of the Panorama City Chamber of Commerce, and Joseph Turnage, president, Panorama City Merchants Association.

Orlinda Mangum, Miss Panorama City, who is a Union Bank employee, also will be present.

The ceremonies will include the presentation of a gold key by Mr. Volk to each of the participants, followed by the official door-opening ceremony.
