Government Report Startling

One in Five Cancers Contracted at Work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chemical high cancer rates among workers in specific fields, government scientists have said in issued one of every five cancers cases in America apparently is contracted at work.

"We choose to use the figure 20 percent in order to be conservative," they said in Monday's startling new report on work hazards ranging from benzol to vinyl chloride and from petroleum distillates to coke oven emissions.

The report by Health, Education and Welfare Department researchers is a major shift from previous estimates that only one in 100 cancer cases is associated in the workplace.

Miller said that on many drugs powerful enough to kill millions of cancer cells, it is inevitable that changes in cells will occur that in some cases will become normal cancers. But in the meantime lives may be extended.

Hammond said one substance caused side effect that is being seen in 21 children in some growth. Then in remaining in children's life he showed that they normally would have been.

The re-examinable fact is that one child is alive to have an earlier a 3-month delay over 15 or 20 years, he said at a news conference.

The new report estimated 87,000 Americans a year are now coming down with lung, urological and other types of cancer from previous work exposure to asbestos alone. That's 17 percent of the total number of Americans expected to get cancer this year, the scientists said.

Among workers singled out for high cancer risks were those who labor in coal tar/pitch volatiles, textile plastic workers, paper process rubber processing and coke plants and in leather and shoe manufacturing occupations.

In naming the different fields, the report did not identify the exchange agent — or apparent cancer causer.

The report did name specific causes in cases of the general work area — including asbestos, arsenic, benzene, coal tar pitch volatiles, coke oven emissions, vinyl chloride, chromium, iron oxide, nickel, and petroleum distillates. These are spread over a number of fields although asbestos was pointed as the most dangerous historical.

"A total of 1 in 5 percent of the cancers occurring in a year will be associated with these four substances," the report said of the first four on the list. Of the last four is said, a total of 3 in 10 percent of the cancers occurring in a year will be associated with these four substances.

The report noted most cancers have multiple causes and it is not easy to attempt to assign each cancer to an exact single cause.

Radiation, Chemicals Destroy Cancer but Have Side Effects

HOUSTON (UPI) — The increasing success doctors are registering in fighting cancer in children is turning up a new problem: delayed side effects of the high doses of radiation or poisonous chemicals that killed the original cancer.

Some new treatment-created threats have appeared along with more frequent but less severe complications in the young ones and women who overcome cancer 10, 15 and even 20 years ago.

There were no problems before. [illegible] how long enough to have them, said Dr. G. Dan Hammond, director of the University of Southern California-Los Angeles Cancer Center in Los Angeles, at a report released today at a national conference on childhood cancer.

Despite the appearance of new cancers in some cancer survivors Dr. Robert V. Miller of the National Cancer Institute said the risk of a new cancer[illegible] remain so small.

The Farm Front

Harvest Brings on Accidents

By RANDALL MCBRATNEY
Extension Agent

As new to the weather will change as indicate the farm harvest season will be upon us before long.

The harvest season always brings a pervasive apathy to some persons at this time. It seems that every year someone is hurt on a farm accident. Everyone is in a hurry and usually does so working under less than ideal conditions and is under favorable conditions.

Human errors are responsible for most accidents. Most most of these but are blamed on mechanical failure could have been prevented if someone had checked and removed the equipment as he went along. Many thousands of farm residents are disabled and others killed each year in their home, farm and recreation activities. Some these tragedies defiant level.

Perhaps you can't do much about the weather that we will be having during the harvest season but you certainly can do much to prevent accidents.

Before harvest season begins on a few things on the farm to make safety a place in your everyday workings to your with your children and your hired help.

Most personal prevention a mattergoing out and develop a safety plan to carry out in your operation. Keep informed about safety and follow directions in your operator's manuals and check on the equipment. Needlessly neglect to repair worn and defective and operate anything faulty or in unsafe right away.

Every day before harvesting, check all equipment to make sure it is in proper working order. Be sure shields are in place and needed personal protective equipment is worn. A fire extinguisher and first aid kit should be carried on every machine on every farmer and in every truck.

As the weather gets hot and the hours longer, everyone should respect his physical and mental limits each work day.

The thing the farmer see more than anything is that so many people will let children ride on the equipment. Keep children off" and away from machinery. Also encourage the elderly and children from using machines that were advanced skills.

Keep children away from unbalanced and filling of wagons and keep of grain. Many serious accidents happened when small children play in grain or in the drawing.

Working more can be hazardous. Take a break to help fight fatigue and reduce accident producing errors. Wear hat rubber or other rainwear to stay dry and [illegible] and rest when you feel drowsy or exhausted.

As members of livestock go down on Bartholomew County and Indiana [illegible] the livestock operations seem to go down. However they are always pressure from livestock on the road.

Many of the labor saving pieces in the livestock operation can be as dangerous as a careless hog biter or forage chopper. Transport powered augers or other moving livestock equipment.

The lack of proper management to handle cattle is a major hazard in and out of pens with. Especially operate at cattle operations are confronting environment to assist in balancing corrective harvesting production hoping [illegible] and so on.

Also, we cannot forget the presence of a bull is always a major concern. A bull pen and barn should be developed in order to prevent accidents.

Many of the livestock accidents are handled in the latter of an farm equipment. So before doing anything, shut down and observe all directions that may be on any labels given to livestock feed purchased or other livestock handling equipment.

Remember it is meant to be fun and safe then reckless one, sorry
