Why Visit the Exhibits?

Leaders of the American Industrial Health Conference have always felt that the scientific and technical exhibit is an essential part of the educational process of its annual meeting. A considerable proportion of medical research is sponsored by many institutions and manufacturers whose displays are part of this exhibit. Year in and year out, they make substantial contributions to progress in industrial medicine. This year, they offer many new ideas in techniques.

All A.I.H.C. registrants are invited and urged to inspect the exhibits, to examine products and services, and to question the exhibitors on "What's new for me to use?" Discuss with these well trained and informed exhibitors the uses of the products of their laboratories. Sample their professional knowledge which is an adjunct to the talks and other presentations of the A.I.H.C. convention, all congregated in one spot.

Intensive Refresher Courses

Sponsored by the Occupational Health Institute, educational affiliate of the Industrial Medical Association

Admission to the IMA Intensive Refresher Courses will be by enrollment card only. Conference registration badge must also be worn. Participation in each session of each course will be limited to 80 physicians. These courses, open only to physicians, have been largely filled through advance registration; however, a few sessions may not be completely subscribed or there may be a few openings due to cancellations. Those interested in enrollment should inquire at the Conference Registration Desk or at the IMA booth in the Great Hall when exhibits are open.
