Dear Bob:

Needless to say, we enjoyed very much your visit in Detroit yesterday and the opportunity of talking with you about a wide variety of things. Certainly our people here gained a good deal by getting your viewpoint.

We are working on the paper on the particulate matter of exhaust gas and will send you the drafts as soon as they are completed. We will also appreciate your telling us of any notes or reactions that you had to the more complete report which you went over, at least partially, while you were here.

I enjoyed very much hearing your talk yesterday evening. It is always very stimulating to hear you talk and especially to hear about a subject with which I am not familiar but which is intensely interesting.

With best regards,

Very truly yours,

W. G. Lovell
