Dear Mr. Cadogan:

Your letter of January 6 to Mr. Frank I. Jones requesting information as to the contamination of oxygen by Pydraul 150 has been referred to me for reply.

Based on inhalation toxicity studies conducted on the components of Pydraul 150, I am sure that the minute amounts of this material in oxygen used for breathing purposes would not constitute any hazard or render the oxygen unfit for use. Laboratory animals have survived, without any toxic effects, several days exposure to relatively massive concentrations.

If we can be of any further assistance, please let me know.

Very truly yours,

Elmer P. Wheeler
