RAIL PACT ENDS THREAT OF STRIKE

Negotiations Reach Wage Settlement for 48,000 Workers

WELL COVER 1870
Most Bar Ratified by Members of 4 Unions; Retrospective Pay

WASHINGTON—(AP) Rail workers and union negotiators reached a wage settlement today for 48,000 railroad workers and 10,000 employees of the Postal Service. The settlement was reached after 20 hours of bargaining.

Although it must be ratified by the members of four unions, the settlement is expected to end the threat of a strike by the Postal Service and the railroad workers.

The settlement was reached after 20 hours of bargaining. It includes a 3 percent wage increase and a 1 percent cost-of-living adjustment.
