the reason for the thing, but I don't think we want to go and say "this causes cancer." You can't even do that today on -- well you can do it, I guess, on cigarettes. I wasn't going to go and shout the word "cancer." I wasn't going to say "buyer in place" or something like that.

Q Why is that? Would it have been bad for business for the industry?

A I don't know.

Q It is a reasonable conclusion to draw; isn't it?

A It's the conclusion that you obviously have drawn.

Q Let me show you the book for 2002. Was Exhibit 13 in Mr. Laycock's June 2002 deposition.

A Okay.

Q Read that for me.

A "Danger, contains asbestos fibers, avoid creating dust. Cancer and lung disease hazards." That was the evolution of time. In other words, the first warning was we didn't have all this information. This is the warning nowadays. This is also probably the warning handed down by OSHA.

Q No, sir. You had that information in
