Scott, good talking to you yesterday!

Thanks for being open to meeting with our client Water Sage. Water Sage has been described as "the Google for water". They can provide the platform track all of the water data and provide the most accurate info possible in a given state including data from difficult to get local jurisdictions and private stakeholder data. They are currently operating in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, California, Texas, Arizona, and expanding to more states shortly. The platform is currently being used by some federal officials out West.

There are many opportunities beyond just knowing who are the holds water rights for those shaping federal policy, rules, and regulations including ESA mitigation, drought policy, and more. We would like to meet with you and any relevant top policy makers at the Bureau of Reclamation and USGS. This is not a sales meeting, but an opportunity to make you and others aware of this tool and how it can be helpful in for federal officials and policy makers.

The President of Water Sage will be in DC next Monday and Tuesday (up to 2pm) Feb 6 & 7. We are able to make any time on those days work to meet with you (and, if appropriate, your team) for no more than 30 minutes.

Thanks in advance, and great to reconnect with you.
