GREENE CIRCUIT COURT CLERK

State of Indiana, Greene County, SS:

In the Greene Circuit Court,

Annual Term, 1982.

Robert Miller,
Phyllis Miller,
Stephen Miller,
and Beverly Miller

vs.

Cause No. C-82-320

Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc.,
and Monsanto Co.

COMPLAINT

Come now the plaintiffs and complain of the defendants, jointly and severally, as follows:

1. At all times material, defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., was in the business of silo construction, and defendant, Monsanto Co. was in the business of chemical manufacturing.

2. Plaintiffs, Robert Miller and Phyllis Miller, are owners of real property in Greene County, Indiana, and are partners in a dairy farm operation with plaintiffs, Stephen Miller and Beverly Miller.

3. In 1969 or 1970, the exact date is known to defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., plaintiff, Robert Miller, contracted with defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., to build upon plaintiffs' real property a silo.

4. Defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., did so construct a silo on plaintiffs' real property. Unknown to plaintiffs, contained in materials used to construct said silo were the toxic chemicals, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs).

5. Defendant, Monsanto Co., was the manufacturer of the toxic chemicals, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), contained in materials used to construct said silo.

6. Upon completion of the silo construction, plaintiffs used said silo to store silage which they would then feed to their Grade A dairy cattle.

7. The Indiana State Board of Health, along with local health departments, began to test the milk of Indiana dairy herds in 1976 for the presence of PCBs.

8. Plaintiffs' dairy herd was first so tested on August 3, 1976, and plaintiffs were informed by letter dated August 20, 1976, that PCBs were found in their herd's raw milk.

9. PCBs in milk comes from milk cows which have been fed with feedstuffs stored in a silo which had been coated with a product containing PCBs. This product is called "cumar" and is a product of Monsanto Co.

10. In 1977, the exact date is known to defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., in an attempt to remedy the situation, defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., recoated plaintiffs' contaminated silo with a non-toxic substance.

11. After experiencing a reduction of the amount of PCBs in plaintiffs' herd's raw milk, the PCB level in said raw milk reached a new high level in 1978.

12. In an additional attempt by defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., to further remedy the situation, defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc., once again recoated plaintiffs' contaminated silo in 1980, the exact date is known to defendant, Bloomfield Silo Co., Inc.

13. In 1981, the amount of PCBs in plaintiffs' herd's raw milk reached a new high level and plaintiffs have been forced to discontinue feeding their herd silage from the contaminated silo.

14. On February 8, 1982, plaintiffs received a letter by certified mail from the Indiana State Board of Health notifying them that their cumar coated concrete silo was going to be condemned by the State Board of Health, said board having determined that PCB contamination may be a cancer causing agent.

15. That the Indiana State Board of Health officially condemned the silo of plaintiffs in June of 1982, ending for the plaintiffs any hope of future use of the silo, and as a result of the construction of said silo by the defendants, in which they used contaminated materials, plaintiffs have now been damaged in the amount of the value of the silo, loss of milk production, and reduction in the size of their dairy herd in an amount in excess of Two Hundred Thousand ($200,000.00) Dollars.

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs pray for judgment against defendants for just compensation of their damages, for the cost of this action, and all other proper relief in the premises.
