STEERING COMMITTEE
SAFETY SECTION

Gentlemen:

We are currently under pressure from our Legal Department to post the OSHA Act on our property. Their reasoning is that we are needlessly paying fines for not posting the Act. Recent Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission (OSHRC) decisions make it clear, for the time being anyway, what areas OSHA has jurisdiction. While we have no intention of keeping OSHA compliance officers off our property, we are a little dubious about the matter of posting. We have contacted several roads by phone and the consensus of opinion is that their Legal Departments favor posting, but their Operating Departments do not - at least, they don't want to be first to do so.

We are considering the matter of posting and personally I see no reason why we shouldn't but I want to solicit your views and suggestions first.

We recently approached the AAR on this matter and it seems that they are not stating a position at this time and are leaving the decision up to us. See the attached letter.

Sincerely,

R. D. Shaver
Manager of Safety-System
