PLAQUE RITES

The governor and Wright then will unveil the dedicatory plaque, and the program will be concluded with the benediction, to be offered by The Rev Urban Bates, O.P., pastor of St. Dominic's Church in Benicia.

The refinery payroll now numbers about 200 employes, and runs to more than $1,000,000 annually.

Humble pays more than $3,000,000 a year in property taxes alone, with more than $2,000,000 of this total being paid directly to the City of Benicia and its school system The company's city and school taxes amount to $300 a year for each man, woman and child in Benicia. Thus the city and school district have been able to make substantial cuts in the property tax rate during the past two years, while at the same time raising the level of education and municipal services.

Humble Oil Co.'s refinery is located on land formerly occupied by Benicia Arsenal, Army installation which was phased out several years ago after serving as the mainstay of the community's economy for more than a century.
