Dear Dr. Kauffman:

Re: Charles Cherren (Kimble
Glass Company)

On November 10, 1958 we observed Mr. Cherren who was complaining of an eruption of his hands of six and one-half years duration. This has been present only from the "wrists down." There has been severe itching. The eruption tends to begin with small vesicles which, due to the severe itching, the patient scratches and digs, tending to spread the eruption. He had a period of complete clearing approximately two years ago. There is no seasonal variation.

On physical examination it was our impression that this was a nummular eczema. We did not believe that this was associated with his occupation.

For therapy we asked him to omit drinking all coffee and we prescribed Vitamin A 50M units in the morning, accompanied with one Gastuloric tablet. Topically we suggested Hydrocortione 1%, Zetar 1%, Burows solution 3% in Vioform cream.

We wish to thank you for your kindness in referring this patient to us.

Very sincerely yours,

Eldred B. Heisel, M.D.
