Dear Sir,

We are currently interested in organochlorine residues in animals and birds, and have noted a reference to the work of Simmons and Tatton of your laboratory. They are stated to have examined human gall-stones and found such residues in 28 patients from two hospitals.

I would be glad to have any further information that is available concerning these experiments and on any similar work you may have carried out in the wider field of our interest.

Yours faithfully,

D.V.N. HARDY
