NOTE—Before this form is filed it should be carefully checked to see that it is complete in every detail. Each item must be answered as directed. If unknown, some statement to that effect must be given. Any attempt to conceal the identity of a defendant may result in dismissal of the application without prejudice.

NOTE—Unless this application is filed within the time limited by the Workmen's Compensation, Insurance and Safety Act, the applicant's right may be barred. Many applications have been barred by the statute of limitations in cases of minor injuries for which no medical treatment was given. Many others have been barred by the statute of limitations in cases of fatal injuries where no application was filed within the time limited by statute. Strong cases may be overthrown in trials on technicalities in cases of minor injuries.
