Travis Air Force Base last June 28.

Winners were selected from 120 entries in four classifications by a panel of judges headed by Prof. Chilton Bush, retired head of the Stanford University journalism department.

Top winners in each category split $1,500 in prize money put up by the Press Club.

It was the second time in the two years the contest has been held that a Times-Herald writer has won top honors. Last year Francis Flaherty won first place for a story on a Vacaville woman who shot and killed her husband and ex-husband, then died in the explosion of her home, accidentally touched off by herself.

Girard, member of a widely-known Napa family, has headed the Fairfield bureau for two years.

Norman Silveria, chairman of the committee for the formation of the Solano County Junior College District and Education Committee Chairman of the Vallejo Chamber of Commerce will be present to explain the benefits of forming a junior college district.

Dr. James Hollister, M.D., a member of the committee to form the district will also be present to help answer questions about this proposal which will be voted upon by the electorate of Solano County on October 5. The public is cordially invited to attend.
