Thanks for the article from the Valley Advocate. While it's hardly a "big expose," it certainly reflects one helluva lot of research and investigation.

The small "box" on page 2 of the material you supplied caught my attention. Lest we dismiss this as the end of it, the box notes that writer Bush and Michak are "working on a related chemical industry story with a grant from the Washington-based Fund for Investigative Journalism."

This probably explains why they were in Washington at that luncheon meeting and, in my opinion, also says the "big expose" is still to come.

Rather than going to the hassle of making you a copy of a copy, I've enclosed mine and trust you will keep it handy. I may need to refer back to it if and when the other shoe drops!
