RE: Testimony of Henry Buccigross

Dear Mr. Gallo:

Pursuant to our conversation of some weeks back, I suggest the following resolution of Owens Corning's claims arising out of the testimony of Mr. Henry Buccigross, an Arthur D. Little employee. As you know, Mr. Buccigross' testimony was adverse to Owens Corning notwithstanding Owens Corning's long-standing relationship with A.D. Little in connection with the Kaylo product and the asbestos litigation. I recognize that any agreement would require the cooperation of John Crane and its counsel.

We would suggest that Owens Corning would withdraw its objection to Mr. Buccigross' testimony on behalf of John Crane and would agree to dismiss its Massachusetts lawsuit without prejudice if A.D. Little and John Crane agree to the following:

1. Mr. Buccigross will no longer be asked on direct examination to compare the dustiness of thermal insulation products to gaskets or other products manufactured or sold by John Crane.
2. John Crane's counsel will agree to object strenuously to cross-examination of Mr. Buccigross regarding comparative tests of thermal insulation including the Kaylo product as being beyond the scope of direct examination.
