HORTICULTURAL NOTES

BY GEO. P. HALL.

Vegetable acids in the soil dissolve lime and thus separate the primitive elements of the different forms of lime. Bones are phosphate of lime, so in ground, bone and bone black is found a large percentage of phosphate, while chalk, limestone and oyster shells are carbonate of lime and are not soluble in water. These being insoluble in water cannot readily be taken up by the plant unless there is something in the soil that will neutralize or accumulate them so they can become food to the plant. Keep in view the fact that all plant food must be liquified in order to be assimilated. This is conclusively proven by the use of liquid manures which are almost immediately in gurgling the yellow drooping plant. Commercial fertilizers are, or should be acidulated and if they are not, and neither the plant nor the soil contains any elements in them to make the needed transformation, it is like piling rock into the sea; it is only a barrier to the waves.

NEW ONES HAVE TO LEARN.
As there are in every community new beginners in gardening and horticulture, and especially so in California, the simple details have to be reiterated again and again for their benefit and even the graduates in gardening can sometimes get a hint. There is no mistake made more frequently than to cover seed too deeply and in the extreme art of getting a living from the soil, the smallest details are sometimes essential. A rule that is followed by many, may not be exact in all instances, but infinitely better than no rule, is to cover the seed three times its diameter, the first the seed, the less covering. It must also be taken into consideration that if covered too lightly the seeds must be kept continually moist, which can be done by means of a cloth covering kept wet.

looking up the cracks, glasses and jars to put up the preserves and pickles in. Some will have need to be mended and this can be easily done by mixing litharge and glycerine to the consistency of putty. It can also be used to mend lumps and cracks, tighten joints in wood. It hardens in a half a day and resists heat, cold and ordinary acids.

THE GOLDEN ROD'S FRIEND.
Up in the mountains about Julian where the golden rod grows just like it does "back east" there is a pretty little beetle that many think is the party that makes the "galls" on the stem. This is a mistake as the beetle is the policeman that is hunting the intruder that bites a notch in the goldenrod, and the plant, in its effort to cover up the wound, grows some new epidermis around the enemy, and thus encloses it in a home formed like a gall. The soldier beetle is hunting for it so do not tell him. You can tell him by his orange coat, tipped with black. Gather some of the galls, boys and girls, and put them in a bottle till the grubs hatch out, and see what the enemy of the pretty goldenrod looks like.

MELONS GALORE.
Coachella, down on the edge of the desert, is the place for superior "Rocky Fords" and all the way from Coronado Beach to Fresno there is opportunity for a fine crop.

Boys, if you want to beat your dad on the onion question, dig a large and rather shallow hole and fill pretty well up with well rotted manure, put on a few inches of dirt, then the seed and if the soil is real moist, they will be up in a few days and never stop growing, though at course too much must not be expected in the real month of May. The girls, can do something handsome, when the melons get to a pretty good size by cutting them out fancy designs in paper and rubbing over the green surface of the melon.
