

3. In 1966, Alcoils, Inc. located in Columbia City, Indiana produced precision wound aluminum and copper coils.
4. In 1969, Precision Specialties, Inc., later known as Warner Electric, PSI, located in Pittman, New Jersey manufactured a line of small mechanical and electrical clutches used in computers, office machinery, instrumentation and other types of automated equipment.
5. In 1983, an additional plant in Walterboro, South Carolina was constructed to manufacture precision ball bearing screws, primarily for the machine tool industry.

Defendant currently is aware of the following foreign entities in which Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company had an interest:

1. Warner Electric Australia Pty., Ltd. was incorporated in 1970 and became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It manufactured wheel brake products.
2. Warner Electric, Ltd. (U.K.) became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It manufactured clutches and brakes.
3. Warner France, S.A. was incorporated in 1959 and became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It manufactured clutches and brakes.
4. Warner Electric SPA (Italy) became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It operated as a sales office.
5. A partly-owned joint venture in India known as Stieber Precision Private Limited made overrunning clutches.
6. Warner Electric (International) S.A. (Switzerland) became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It operated as the International Headquarters and as a sales office.
7. Societe de Vente Warner Electric (Warner Electric S.A.) (Switzerland) was incorporated in 1966 and became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It operated as a sales office within Switzerland and later manufactured and sold the Acomel Product Line.
8. Warner Electric, GmbH (Germany) was incorporated in 1967 and became a subsidiary of Defendant upon Defendant's acquisition of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Company. It produced ball screws, clutches and brakes.