First USES reports coming in from labor market areas indicated that enrollment of veterans to schools and colleges were important factors in reducing labor surpluses in certain areas. This will make itself felt in some labor market areas, but in others, especially where skilled or semi-skilled labor is in great demand, USES says it will have little effect. The USES points out that if you took 400,000 to 500,000 skilled or semi-skilled permanent workers out of the labor market the effect would be serious. However, few veterans fall in these groups. Where the labor market is tight, and veterans have been working for some months while waiting to get back into school, there are vacancies that do have to be filled. More mature veterans who feel the need of permanent employment rather than a desire to resume their educational studies

Some of this drop is attributed to the return of veterans to school, some to the fact that many others have found employment. Playful Burglar Goes Through Police Lockers LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26 (U.P.)—Red-faced policemen today were looking for a bold thief who broke into their lockers at central station. Officer Peter A. Hartley glumly notified the burglary squad that he was missing his .38 Colt revolver and two boxes of shells. Officer James F. Fite reported the loss of a $35 leather jacket and some ammunition. Evidently having the time of his life, the thief playfully locked Hartley's locker with a spare padlock, leaving the key inside. Hartley had to hire a locksmith to break into the locker.
