New Oilfield Said Good Producer

CORONA (UPI)—A newly discovered oilfield just 3½ miles east of Los Angeles is producing five to 10 times the normal flow of petroleum, Santa Fe International Corp. has announced.

The subsidiary of Los Angeles-based Santa Fe Minerals Inc., said the new find was at the 2,600-foot level in a fault zone in Riverside County.

Santa Fe Minerals President E.L. Shannon, Jr., said the heavy oil and natural gas find justified the drilling of six or seven more wells on the 1,238-acre Prado-Corona field.
