2 A Well, I teach pathology. I am among the 3 many teachers at Johns Hopkins that gives lectures to 4 students in pathology, and runs laboratory sessions
5 for the students in pathology.

6 There are also students and residents that 7 come to our hospital and work with us while we handle 8 tissues and make a diagnosis with a microscope, so we 9 teach them as part of our routine work every day.

10 Q What are peer-review journals, Dr.
11 Gabrielson?

12 A Well, peer-review journals, I guess if you
13 look at one, you would think that it looks like a 14 magazine, except it is all scientific reports.

15 These are reports that people submit to the 16 journals for publication after doing some research or 17 after doing some studies.

18 The editors of the journal will send it to 19 individuals that the editors consider to be 20 appropriate experts of the area to review, and if the 21 reviewer considers it to be worthy of publication,
