IN FLAT GLASS TANKS, TOO, "PRETTY IS AS PRETTY DOES"

This photograph above is interesting in that it shows how one of America's most progressive flat-glass manufacturers builds the melting end of its tanks, utilizing Corhart Electrocast Refractories. Note the extensive use of Corhart ZAC top course sidewalls and superstructure.

Interesting as this photograph is, however, its interest is vastly increased by the fact that these tanks consistently turn out high-quality clear flat glass at very low production costs.

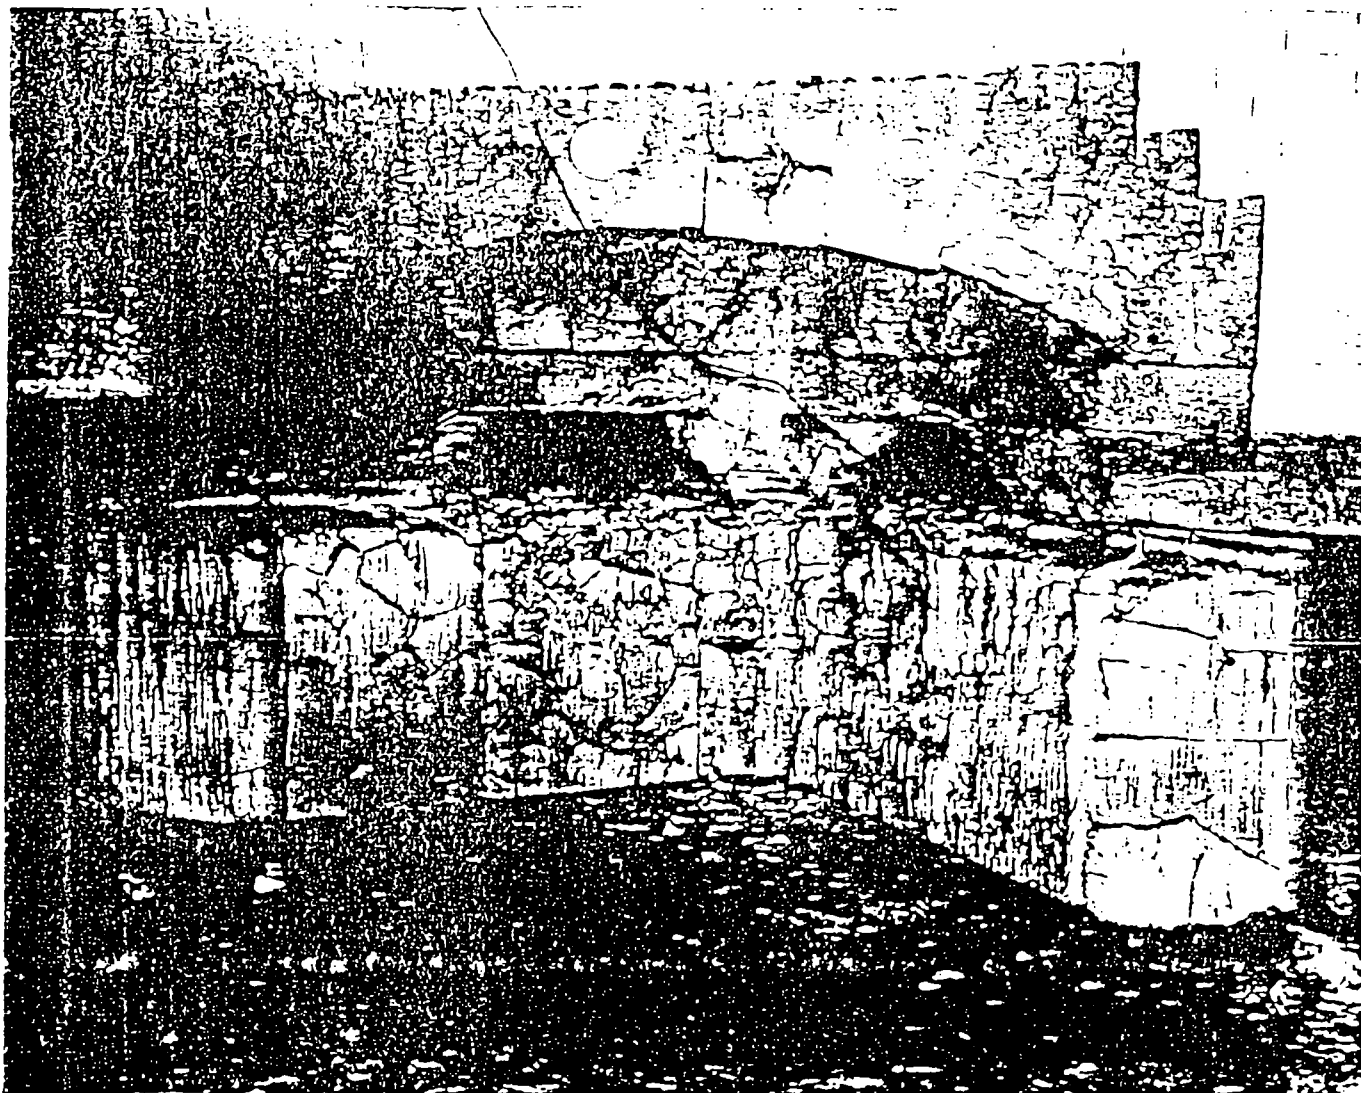

May we discuss life, production and costs with you?

WATERCOOLED PHOTOGRAPH

WE'RE IN THATCHER'S DOGHOUSE— AND WE LIKE IT!

The photo above shows part of the Corhart Zic backwall and doghouse of a Thatcher Glass Company all-Corhart flint bottle tank at Elmira, N.Y. Despite the fact that this tank has just completed a run of 850 days in which 104,463 tons of glass were produced, most of the Corhart Zic material is still in good condition. The arches are still being used.

The data at the right will interest you. Meanwhile, if you would like to have any further facts, or to discuss the possibilities of Corhart Zic Electrocast Refractories in the vulnerable portions of your furnaces, we would welcome an opportunity to talk with you. Corhart Refractories Company, Incorporated, 16th and Lee Streets, Louisville 10, Kentucky.

American Ceramic Society Membership Roster

This Roster of paid Members is published for the use of the Members of The American Ceramic Society. The list is alphabetical, with names of Corporation Members in bold-face type and their voting representatives following in parentheses. An asterisk (*) follows the name of each Society Fellow, and a dagger (†) follows the name of each member of the Institute of Ceramic Engineers. Junior and Student Members are indicated by (J) and (S), respectively. Life and Honorary Members are also indicated parenthetically after the names.

A separate Roster of the Institute of Ceramic Engineers, showing grades of membership, appears on pages 40 and 42 of the advertising section in this issue.

New Members and other changes received too late to be included are listed in the Addenda at the end of this Roster.
