Crosby update at 4:30 PM EDT September 3, 2017

Update on Arkema Inc. Crosby Plant

At the Arkema Inc. site in Crosby, Texas, there is clear visual evidence that the chemicals in the trailers are degrading but they have failed to ignite completely. We are concerned that, without ignition, we can't determine if the hazard has been fully eliminated.

In order to maintain control of the situation, proactive measures to safely cause ignition of the remaining trailers through controlled means are being taken.

This decision was made by Arkema Inc. in full coordination with unified command. These measures do not pose any additional risk to the community, and both Arkema and members of the unified command believe this is the safest approach. The 1.5 mile evacuation zone is still in place, until further notice.
