

included use of certain grapes, until Jan. 1, crops as, apricots, berries, umbers, lettuce, arsnips, pears, potatoes,

It also prohibits from use 12 crops grown for seed: beets, broccoli, brussels sprouts, carrots, cabbage, cauliflower, collards, ladino clover, lettuce, mustard, onions and turnips.

The regulations ban the use of DDT or DDD for fly control and killing pests of chickens, horses, cattle, pigeons, sheep, swine and turkeys.

Earlier this year the department adopted regulations banning pesticides for household and garden use and in dust form on crops effective Jan. 1.

A 1969 bill by Sen. John G. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, to ban DDT and other pesticides by agriculture committee. Pender opposed the measure during legislative hearings, saying his department already had the authority it needed to control harmful pesticides.
