Dr. R. A. Kehoe.

Dear Dr. Kehoe,

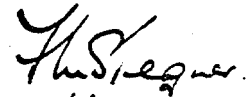

Very many thanks for your letter of May 27th in connection with the use of empty Ethyl gasoline drums for the storage and transport of palm oil or other food products.

Gasoline drums in the territories to which I referred, namely the Belgian Congo, etc., are non-returnable drums, are filled once with gasoline and when emptied are used by natives for other purposes. From your previous correspondence on this matter I fully appreciate that if such drums were frequently used for the transport of Ethyl gasoline, and then finally, after numerous fillings and emptyings, were released for the conveyance of palm oil, there would be some danger. This is not the case in these territories.

I do not think that there are any special methods employed for the cleaning of these drums; they are simply emptied as far as possible and then released. I would be interested to hear your final decision on this matter.

With personal regards,

Yours sincerely,

FMST/BB
