Hi Lindsey—

I see that your story on the UMD Campus RainWorks Challenge winners already ran. (Thanks for the great coverage!) In case you're interested in updating, I have the information you requested yesterday.

On background:

87 student teams from across 30 states submitted green infrastructure designs that address urban stormwater pollution and showcase the environmental, economic, and social benefits of green infrastructure. There were 42 entries in the demonstration project category and 45 in the master plan category.

Best,

Tricia

Yes, I can. Also, would you be able to tell me how many teams submitted design plans?

Hi Lindsay—

Did you see the quote in the press release by Office of Water Assistant Administrator David Ross? Are you able to use that?

Thanks so much,

Tricia

Good day,

Thanks for reaching out! Tricia Lynn on my team and copied here will be in touch with you this morning.

In the interim, here's the national press release we issued last Thursday in case you haven't seen it: <https://www.epa.gov/newsreleases/epa-announces-winners-6th-annual-campus-rainworks-challenge>

Congrats to the University of Maryland!

Hi,

I hope your week is going well! I was forwarded an email you sent to The Diamondback about the Rainworks award. I am the reporter who is writing about this. I'd love to get a comment from you on this if possible!

Thanks,
