Two questions have been posed by the Krummrich Plant people.

1. Should we have TCC stability goals for products other than Aroclor 1242?

2. Should we have a continuing competitive testing program? If so, should it include products (other than chlorinated biphenyl) which might threaten our Aroclor business? What frequency of testing is appropriate?

Please keep in mind that we are not interested in generating additional manufacturing costs unless they help you to sell more Aroclor.
