

...nities, it may rather be desirable, but not at the expense of a plant's good health. Many benefits derive from replacing the natural mulches with one of the mulching materials.

Peel moss, leaf mold and the like not only help to conserve moisture during warm weather, they prevent soil compaction, guard shallow-rooted plants against overheating, hold weeds in check and prevent soils from washing out.

The fourth tree in this four is the principal color, but pink and yellow shades are to be found also, with one copper-colored beauty that's worth looking for.

The fourth tree in this four is the Jacaranda, more commonly seen in southern California than in other parts of the state. It does well farther north, provided extreme frost is not a threat. Its leaves somewhat resemble the acacia, but its flowers are a lovely, clear blue.

...in the open ground, geraniums are really better for neglect than with excess attention. They
