Q Can you tell the Court and jury, please, a little about your background and training, and by that I mean your education which led to your becoming a pathologist.

A Yes. I went to college in Texas which is why I talk like this, and I came east in 1960 to Johns Hopkins Medical School. And I graduated in 1968 from the medical school.

And I did my residency training, which is the advanced training from 1968 to '72. And when I finished my residency, I took the board that certified me. And I served for two years in the Army from 1972 to 1974.

When I got out, I went to Philadelphia where I worked at the University of Pennsylvania, and then I came back here in 1978 and I have been here ever since.

Q Did you receive any fellowships or awards over the years which allowed you to study and do research in countries other than the United States?

A Yes, I did. I got fellowships twice to
