State Builders Elect Officers

SANTA CRUZ, Sept. 8. (AP)—The eighth annual meeting of the State Builders' Exchange closed here today after electing J. B. Sanford of Richmond president.

Other officers elected are H. M. Tait, Dan Jones, vice-president; George W. Israel, Pasadena, second vice-president; E. W. Shaw, Garland, secretary, and Dan Wagner, Santa Barbara, treasurer-at-large.

A large delegation from Southern California proposed free exchange for the State, instead of northern and southern units. A meeting to decide the question will be held within a month. A California building code for the entire State also is recommended.

Exchange officers announce that negotiations are under way with Mayor Robert of San Francisco to draw up new building laws for the city. The plan will require the Mayor to select a commission which in turn will pick a contractor, architect and engineer to draw up the rules and report on the board of supervisors.

Unpainted stucco breaks down from the constant attack of carbonic acid, formed from the carbon dioxide and moisture of the air. Prove this by brushing a dry, unpainted stucco wall with a stiff broom—note the calcium dust cloud that rises!

Moisture also is a constant menace. Unprotected stucco absorbs water almost like a sponge. Dampness may linger for weeks—attacking and rusting the metal lath. As a result, the stucco develops unsightly streaks and cracks—finally crumbling and falling away.

Stone, in fact, needs painting more than wood. But the ever-present lime causes "spalling" and destruction of ordinary house paint. Concrete is lime-resistant. It excludes moisture and prevents chemical disintegration. And its mellow, stone-like texture enhances the beauty of the natural surface. Twelve pleasing colors and white.
