Part IV of

PROCEEDINGS

NINTH ANNUAL MEETING

OF

INDUSTRIAL HYGIENE FOUNDATION OF AMERICA, INC.

NOVEMBER 15-16, 1944

FOREWORD

The pressure of war production has strengthened the linkage between medicine and engineering in the industrial health field. These professions are interdependent in the maintenance of a healthful workplace. That is one reason why the Medical and Engineering Sections were combined at the Ninth Annual Meeting of Members of Industrial Hygiene Foundation which was held at Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, on November 15 and 16, 1944. Presiding at the joint session were Col. A. J. Lanza, M.C., and Prof. Philip Drinker, Chairman of the Foundation's Medical and Preventive Engineering Committees, respectively.

The practical benefits of this alliance for the advancement of industrial health, and the potentialities it offers, are illustrated by the content of the Transactions of the Medical and Engineering Sections which comprises Part IV of the annual meeting Proceedings.

March, 1945.
