port for
Dawes,
he United States Senate rules was voted here today by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas.

"I am in accord with Vice-President Dawes," said Mr. Capper.

"I think he is on the right track.

"There has been quite a large group in the Senate who have favored such a movement for several years, and who think we have outgrown the rules which have been governing the transaction of Senate business."

"Archais, intolerable and indefensible," were descriptions the Kansas Senator applied to the Senate rules.

"They permit long debate and make it impossible to work out a constructive program. These rules seriously block action on important matters and are largely responsible for long sessions of Congress. But for them government business could be disposed of more promptly. Congress complete its business and adjourn."
